Born in Whiteriver, Arizona and one of 11 children, Chairwoman Lee-Gatewood grew up with humble beginnings in Show Low, Arizona. Her mother’s family is from Carrizo and Limestone, Arizona and her father’s family is from Oak Creek, Cibecue and San Carlos. As the HR Director Chairwoman Lee-Gatewood helped develop the Public Safety Pension Plan and incorporated a self-funded Workers’ Compensation Program that control costs.

If you could ask Chairwoman Lee-Gatewood who she credits to her many worthy and honorable achievements, she’s humbly tell you that is was her late parents who taught her that hard work and being resilient, despite hardship, would be her guide during good times and difficult times. It is through her heritage and culture for her Apache people she has learned to appreciate her values and principles instilled by her parents. During Chairwoman Lee-Gatewood inauguration she shared, “While looking towards the future, we should not forget that our people have overcome great adversity, but we are strong as a culture. By working together, we recommit ourselves to the values our ancestors gave us to write a brighter chapter for our people.”

Formerly known as the Commission of Indian Affairs, the Governor's Office on Tribal Relations works to ensure equitable access to state services and may initiate or assist programs on tribal land only on the request of, or with the approval of, a tribal nation.

Pursuant to A.R.S. 41-2051, the Office on Tribal Relations is established to assist state agencies in implementing tribal consultation and outreach activities. Each state agency shall:

1. Develop and implement tribal consultation policies to guide the agency's work and interaction with the tribal nations of this state.
2. To the extent practicable and permitted by law, seek input from appropriate elected or appointed tribal officials before undertaking any action or policy that will, or is reasonably believed to, have the potential to affect a tribal community or its members.
3. To the fullest extent possible and to the best of the agency's ability, integrate the input generated from tribal consultation into the agency's decision-making processes to achieve mutually acceptable solutions.
4. Designate a state member to assume responsibility for the agency's implementation of the tribal consultation policies and to act as the principal point of contact for tribal affairs.
5. On or before October 1 of each year, review the agency's tribal consultation policies and submit an electronic progress report with performance measures to the office. The office shall make the reports available to tribal leaders and legislators.

In addition, the Office on Tribal Relations has duty to report the discovery of sacred ceremonial objects or objects of cultural patrimony, and assist in the coordination of all activities relating to the education of Native American pupils.

The Office on Tribal Relations will host distinct events to enable state agencies, tribal nations and their community members to address issues on a regular and proactive basis.

- Indian Nations and Tribes Legislative Day to celebrate the rich culture and history of Arizona's Tribes and Nations and also to address issues of mutual interest
- Arizona Indian Town Hall to create a process that promotes public consideration builds consensus and supports the implementation of resulting recommendations.

To supplement our outreach efforts, office is available to: provide training on cross-cultural situations; promote increased participation by American Indians in local and state affairs; initiate programs to stimulate economic growth; and, establish an executive committee or other committees, as necessary.

To discuss any of the service offerings, please contact:
